

Can You Convince Grandma and Grandpa to Come?

Your grandparents have grandchildren in three states: Washington, Minnesota and Montana. This year, they can only afford to visit one state, so they have decided to hold a contest: whichever grandchildren can convince them that their state best fits their interests will win a visit, and you hope they pick Montana as Grandma and Grandpa come bearing gifts. It is your task to show how Montana is the best state for them to visit this year. Here is some information to consider:

Grandpa likes the following:

- History and learning about Indians and battlefields.
- He is a former military officer
- Rocks and minerals and is interested in mining.
- Government and state capitol

Grandma likes the following:

- Art and museums
- National and State Parks,
- Geography and where to hike and raft
- But she is a bit worried about the weather and wants advice on when to visit based on climate.

You can choose any way you want to convince your grandparents. You can choose any presentation method or a variety of methods. For example, you can use Animoto, moviemaker, a webcam, PowerPoint or prepare a rap or a play or use any other way or ways to convince them that Montana is the best place to visit. All of your information must be factual, and you will have to provide your sources for your grandparents to do follow up research on their own.

We will see who is the most convincing!
